Have you ever felt that there was more to life and nature than science and TV has to offer? Things that we could learn if we could look deeper than face value. Find hidden meanings in ordinary events and objects. These are the things “The Haiku Matrix” tries to uncover. “The Circumference of All Things” is a near 200 page collection of haiku poems written by S J Contreras. Even though haiku have a set formula it requires a mystical and philosophical approach to looking into synchronicity, relationships, patterns, and purposes of all things. Each haiku is like a zip file. It holds a lot of thought that can be decoded into a grand picture or a whole story in itself. A riddle to be solved. This is a large print book designed so each poem would have its own page and attention. The concept is like a picture book. This makes them suitable for framing. For an added bonus the appendix has a 15 page treatise on art/poetry and S J Contreras’s approach to it all (mostly personal philosophy stuff) . Why not?
